ORDER

JESSE M. FURMAN, United States District Judge:

Pursuant to the Court's Order of October 23, 2019, the parties are required to file a joint letter, the contents of which are described in that Order, as well as a jointly proposed Civil Case Management Plan and Scheduling Order. See ECF No. 9. The initial pretrial conference is currently scheduled for May 13, 2020, making those joint materials due May 7, 2020. Nevertheless, Plaintiff yesterday "[t]ook] the liberty of [filing] a proposed Case Management Plan & Scheduling Order" without Defendants' participation. ECF No. 35. And today, Defendants filed a letter of their own, as well as a proposed Case Management Plan and Scheduling Order, which includes materially different proposed deadlines. See ECF No. 36.

No later than May 7, 2020, the parties shall file materials that comply with the Court's Order — a joint letter and a joint proposed Case Management Plan and Scheduling Order. Although, in light of the recent filings and their tenor, the Court is of the view that the conference is likely necessary, the parties must nonetheless include in their joint letter an indication of whether they believe that they can do without a conference altogether. See ECF No. 34. If the parties cannot agree on any matter, they shall note their disagreement in the joint materials.

SO ORDERED.
